Important information

Berths in double cabins cannot be booked by passengers travelling alone. Children must be at least 7 years old and sleep in a separate berth. There are no child discounts.

The cabins are fitted with bunk beds (except on the main deck of M/S Diana and a few other exceptions) and are about the same size as a small sleeping compartment on a train. As the berths vary in length, we ask that you tell us ahead of time if you are above average height (approx. 175 cm). The cabins are fitted with a washbasin with hot and cold water. There are showers on all decks, except for shelter deck on M/S Diana, and toilets on all.

The shelter deck contains the dining room and the lounge. On bridge deck there are comfortable chairs for relaxing and also a bar. The ship has a small onboard souvenir shop and a small ship's library. There is neither radio nor TV on board.

The tour guide holds daily information meetings in three languages (Swedish, English and German) to let you know what is going to happen during the day, tell you about the history of the canal and the local sites, as well as provide practical information. The tour guide is available throughout the cruise and even leads some of the shore trips.

Daytime wear should be comfortable, since much of the time is spent outdoors. Bring something warm, a windproof jacket and walking shoes, in addition to your summer clothing. Tradition has it that the guests change to something a bit more elegant for dinner, but going so far as a dark suit is not essential – smart casual is quite sufficient.

Our ships are charming, but old, which means that thresholds are high and stairways steep. In addition, most shore excursions are on foot. For this reason, if you are physically disadvantaged, you should indicate this when booking and bring along a personal companion.

The menu at lunch and dinner is fixed. Special requirements concerning food must therefore be notified in advance.

For safety reasons, and for the comfort of other guests, smoking is only permitted outdoors at the places so marked.

Arrival times are approximate, as weather and traffic conditions can cause some delays. For that reason you should arrange to have a good time margin for continued travel on the day of arrival. The shipping company can not be held responsible for any additional costs in conjunction with delays that are beyond the company's control.

There is no long-term parking near the quays in Gothenburg and Stockholm.

The booking must be cancelled prior to departure in order for the cancellation insurance to apply. The cancellation must also contain a medical certificate issued by a licensed physician.
